Your interactive online resource for raising brain tumor awareness and gaining support!

Become part of our State Directory

- ✓ Your center will be featured as part of our state directory and a web page within this directory featuring links to your center, programs and news that will provide patients and their families with valuable information. We navigate our site visitors to your web pages containing the specific information so that they become familiar with you, not just our information about your center.
- ✓ Area information regarding lodging, maps, transportation and other items of interest will be featured on this page so that patients can access what they need.
- ✓ We invite you and your staff to contribute to this page with your news updates and articles of interest that will be suitable for our categories of site visitors-patients, caregivers, advocates, survivors, professionals, students, media and sponsors. This will be an easy uploadable process whereby your staff can submit their information to our volunteer staff.
- ✓ We want to assist you in promoting your news through a variety of media- blogging, vlogging (video), rss feeds, our community toolbar (used on web browsers), newsletter articles, social networks, YouTube and web page hosting.
- ✓ We encourage submission of survivor and caregiver stories to feature on your web page with us. We will feature these stories online through simple articles or through video interviews.
- ✓ We seek to begin a collaboration that inspires hope, encourages and empowers patients and their families, networks professionals and organizations to share information and resources to ease the stress on the families affected by brain tumors.
- ✓ The BTAO believes that through our website, we can provide a snapshot of the affects of brain tumors on our community and how we can improve the navigation process for all.
